UPDATE 21/09/2015

Regarding info on a ruling from the Supreme Court in Andalucía about parking.

The ruling states that in order to be parked correctly it is not relevant whether the vehicle is occupied and if so, this is no motive to put limitations to the duration of the parking. Provided the vehicle is parked correctly, doesn't surpass the markings on the road, nor the time limits (if there are any) and it doesn't have any elements folded out, nor makes use of stabilisers or nivelators.
